Abstract

The Edwin B. Worthen Collection documents life in Lexington from its earliest settlement to the mid-20th century. The materials were collected by Edwin B. Worthen (1879-1956), his son Edwin B. Worthen, Jr. (1913-1976) and his daughter-in-law, Anita P. Worthen (1913-2008), and donated to Cary Memorial Library in 1976.

The Worthen Collection has two components:

- Approximately 500 books, which have been cataloged in the Minuteman Library Network's online catalog. The books are located in Cary Library's Oval Room, with call numbers beginning WORTHEN COLL.
- A collection of non-book materials – manuscripts, news clippings, research notes, pamphlets, photographs, slides, maps, scrapbooks, correspondence, memorabilia, etc. – about American history, the Battles of Lexington and Concord, April 19th celebrations, Lexington's historic properties and monuments, Lexington families and individuals, religious, social and civic organizations, schools and businesses, socio-economic conditions, politics and town government, and infrastructure and transportation. The collection also includes some items about the colonial and revolutionary periods, as well as some primary source documents from the colonial and revolutionary periods.

Finding Aid – Edwin B. Worthen Collection Cary Memorial Library

These non-book materials are located in Cary’s Library’s Archives Room, a climate-controlled vault that was built in 2012, and one map case in Cary Library’s Oval Room.

To facilitate discovery of and access to the materials online, the Worthen Collection has been organized into six smaller collections – Documents, Photographs, Lantern Slides, Maps, Objects, and Newspapers – which may be explored in the “Virtual Exhibit,” a searchable database. The Scope and Contents section provides information about each of these six collections.

Why is the Worthen Collection important? The Worthens were avid collectors of, and enthusiastic participants in, all things Lexington. They lived during a period when the town was transformed from a small community of 3,831 in 1900, to a vibrant suburb of more than 31,000 in 1970. They were thorough researchers and prolific writers, with particular interest in the settlement, growth and development of the town.

While subjects covered by the collection may be familiar to residents and historians, some of the materials are unique; for example, the collection includes Edwin B. Worthen Sr.’s notes from interviews with Lexington old-timers, as well as extensive research materials related to property ownership and transfer.

Anyone curious about the history of Lexington – especially between the mid-1800s and mid-1900s – will find the materials in the Worthen Collection both interesting and valuable.

Cataloging the Worthen Collection

This Finding Aid is the first comprehensive summary of the entire Edwin B. Worthen Collection. After the collection was donated to Cary Library in 1976, Anita Worthen and library staff organized the materials into different formats, arranged them under general subject headings, and created basic inventory and reference lists that have been used over the years. But the collection was never cataloged or cross-indexed, making it difficult for librarians or researchers to utilize the collection to its full potential.

In 2010, Cary Memorial Library applied for grant from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners (MBLC) to facilitate the proper cataloging of the Worthen Collection. Cary Library was awarded a $20,000 LSTA grant from the IMLS, to “arrange and describe” the Edwin B. Worthen Collection. Tasks included developing an overall organization scheme for the collection, cataloging different materials using PastPerfect Museum Software, rehousing materials and taking appropriate preservation measures, and creating an online Finding Aid and the “Virtual Exhibit,” a searchable database.

Biographical History

Edwin B. Worthen, Sr. (June 12, 1879- August 16, 1956) moved with his family from Cambridgeport to Lexington in 1880 at the age of one. He was involved in town activities his entire life, from participating in the Lexington Drum Corps in the 1890s to serving as President of the Lexington Savings Bank until his death. He was active in the Lexington Historical Society, serving as its president in the early 1920s. In 1923; he assisted D. W. Griffith in the filming of the Lexington sequences for the motion picture "America"; he devoted much time and energy in assembling material for preservation, as well as the preparation for loan of photographic exhibits on historic Lexington which he sent to all parts of the country.

Mr. Worthen served as President of the Lexington Historical Society from 1921-1924 (and thereafter served as the Town's unofficial historian for many years), as a member of the 1924 Zoning By-Laws Committee and member of the Planning Board from 1924-1927. He also was a member of the 150th Anniversary Committee, 1923-1925, a member of the aircraft carrier "Lexington" committee, and was treasurer of the 1925 Pageant of Lexington. For many years he was an examiner for the Boy Scouts and for the Guides on duty at the Common. Mr. Worthen attended town meetings for a period of 60 years and was a Town Meeting Member.

Mr. Worthen was Treasurer of the Lexington Savings Bank from 1909-1952, and President from 1952-1956. In 1946 the Lexington Savings Bank, in observance of its 75th anniversary, issued the Calendar History of Lexington, which was compiled and written by Mr. Worthen. This book was formed from Mr. Worthen's research and detailed material that he had collected over the years pertaining to the town's history, customs, institutions, and people. For a number of years, Mr. Worthen wrote a weekly column in the Lexington Minuteman newspaper under the heading "Things to Remember," on topics of historical interest. <sup>1</sup>

Edwin B. Worthen, Jr., (March 31, 1913 - March 13, 1976) was a life-long resident of Lexington who followed in his father's footsteps when it came to his interest and involvement in Lexington's past, present and future. He graduated from MIT in 1936 and was an architect for Leland and Larson in Boston for many years. He worked on several buildings in Lexington, including the Central Fire Station, an addition to the First Parish Church, the Harrington School and the Hayden Recreation Center. He was active in Lexington town government, serving as a Town Meeting Member, member and Chairman of the Planning Board, and Chairman of the Building By-Laws Committee. He was a charter member and past Director of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce, a trustee of the Lexington Savings Bank, and a member of the town's 250th Anniversary celebration committee, the Historic Districts Commission, and the Lexington Historical Society.

Anita P. Worthen (August 18, 1913 – August 26, 2008) has been described as “the quintessential partner, researcher and archivist.” A Lexington native and trained librarian, she was tireless in her support of her husband's and father-in-law's historical pursuits, as well as her own, and was responsible for many of the details of the Worthen Collection. After the collection was donated to Cary Library, she assisted staff with organizing and categorizing the materials, and wrote letters over the years on issues related to access, preservation and security. She and her husband were active in the Lexington Historical Society; she served as secretary and curator for many years. Mrs. Worthen also was involved with the preservation of architectural plans for many town buildings, and was instrumental in initiating an “information guide” program to introduce tourists to Lexington's history.

Published Materials

Edwin B. Worthen, Sr. and his son, Edwin B. Worthen, Jr., were thorough researchers and prolific writers. Their published materials, which include several monographs and reports, are listed below. The Worthens also generated a considerable amount of correspondence, letters to the editor, newspaper columns, and committee reports, which are included in the Documents series in the Worthen Collection. Manuscripts and publications of Edwin B. Worthen, Jr. are located in Document Series 27; manuscripts and publications of Edwin B. Worthen, Sr. are located in Document Series 36.

Organization and Arrangement

Donated to Cary Memorial Library in 1976, the Edwin B. Worthen Collection has two components:

- Approximately 500 books, which have been cataloged in the Minuteman Library Network's online catalog. The books are located in Cary Library's Oval Room, with call numbers beginning WORTHEN COLL.
- A collection of non-book materials – manuscripts, news clippings, research notes, pamphlets, photographs, slides, maps, scrapbooks, correspondence, memorabilia, etc. – about American history, the Battles of Lexington and Concord, April 19th celebrations, Lexington's historic properties and monuments, Lexington families and individuals, religious, social and civic organizations, schools and businesses, socio-economic conditions, politics and town government, and infrastructure and transportation. The collection also includes some items about the colonial and revolutionary periods, as well as some primary source documents from the colonial and revolutionary periods.

These non-book materials are located in Cary’s Library’s Archives Room, a climate-controlled vault that was built in 2012, and one map case in Cary Library’s Oval Room. The materials have been organized into six smaller collections – Documents, Photographs, Lantern Slides, Maps, Objects, and Newspapers – which may be explored on the Worthen Collection “Virtual Exhibit,” a searchable database. The Scope and Contents section below provides information about each of these collections.

Scope and Contents of the Collection

The Edwin B. Worthen Collection documents life in Lexington from its earliest settlement through the mid-20th centuries. The Worthen family was especially interested in the history of who lived where and when in Lexington, as well as in contemporary events that transformed the town during their lifetimes. Subjects range from American history, the Battles of Lexington and Concord, April 19th celebrations, and historic properties and monuments, to Lexington’s families and individuals, religious, social and civic organizations, schools and businesses, socio-economic conditions, politics and town government, and infrastructure and transportation.

Documents

The most substantial, and arguably most important, materials in the Worthen Collection are hundreds of document folders containing thousands of individual items: research notes, manuscripts, newspaper clippings, pamphlets, letters, and items such as tickets, programs, postcards, flyers, invitations, brochures, and receipts. Dates for the materials range from the 1720s to the 1970s.

Finding Aid – Edwin B. Worthen Collection Cary Memorial Library

Organized into 42 numbered series, the Documents collection includes materials on American history, the Battles of Lexington and Concord, April 19th and other celebrations, Lexington's historic properties and monuments, neighborhoods and areas, families and individuals, religious, social and civic organizations, schools and businesses, socio-economic conditions, politics and town government, and infrastructure and transportation. The materials also include items about the colonial and revolutionary periods, as well as some primary source documents from the colonial and revolutionary periods.

Thorough researchers and prolific writers, the Worthens not only collected materials but also created them. They wrote and published monographs, articles and letters to the editor; gave talks to a variety of audiences; and participated in numerous civic and social organizations. These activities are well-documented; for example, the collection includes the research materials that were compiled for writing published and unpublished manuscripts, letters to the editor, newspaper columns and stories, and feature articles.

In 2011, basic cataloging ("folder-level") was completed to allow general discovery of materials in this part of the collection; in addition, detailed cataloging ("item-level") was initiated. In 2012 and 2013, cataloging of individual items was continued, offering researchers additional opportunities for discovery of materials. Updates to the collection were made in 2016 and 2021.

Photographs, Postcards & Negatives

More than 1500 photographs, prints and postcards portray life in Lexington during the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Images depict Battle of Lexington reenactments and celebrations, historic properties and landmarks, houses, town buildings, schools and businesses, and individuals and groups. The Worthens collected photographs and took many pictures themselves to document Lexington's history as well as the ways in which the town changed during their lifetimes.

Lantern Slides

The Lantern Slide exhibit includes approximately 300 lantern slides collected by Edwin B. Worthen, Sr., who used them to give talks in the 1930s and 1940s to students, social and professional groups and other audiences. The slides depict Lexington's people, places and events from 1775 to 1954, showing glimpses of Lexington during previous generations as well as how it changed during his lifetime. Edwin B. Worthen, Jr., also used the slides to give talks in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Mr. Worthen, Sr. not only collected, organized and labeled the slides, he also wrote narrative descriptions - some of which are quite detailed - which served as scripted notes to describe the people, places and events in the images and, in many cases, the reasons why they were important. Many of the slides of individuals and groups indicate peoples' names, giving us the ability to use them for family history research. Through these images and their descriptions, we are able to get a glimpse of what life was like in Lexington.

The scanned lantern slide images, and accompanying descriptions written by Mr. Worthen, may be found in the Worthen Collection Virtual Exhibit.

The slides are organized as follows:

- Slides 1 through 222 are of Lexington properties, places, landmarks and events
- Slides A through R are of individuals
- Slides A1 through A40 are of groups of people
- Slides S1 through S19 are of school buildings and groups of students

Maps

The Worthen Collection includes approximately 100 maps that depict Lexington and surrounding areas from the 1600s through the 1960s. Edwin B. Worthen, Sr. was keenly interested in understanding and illustrating who lived where and when in Lexington, from the earliest colonial land grants to the early-/mid-20th century when many of the original farms became residential developments.

In addition to collecting maps, Mr. Worthen created or traced others' maps and surveys to indicate property holdings of early settlers and families. The map collection also includes commercially printed maps and atlases, as well as commemorative maps and tourist guides.

Items in the Maps collection are listed below. Scanned images and more information may be found in the Worthen Collection Virtual Exhibit.

Newspapers, Journals & Articles

This collection includes approximately 200 issues of more than 56 local and regional newspapers reporting on Lexington's – and, in many cases, America's – history from the early 1800s through 1975. Headlines cover the news of the day, whether commemorating the Battles of Lexington and Concord, presenting the pros and cons of building a new high school for Lexington, debating new national banking regulations, or announcing the deaths of Presidents Lincoln, Grant and Kennedy.

Administrative Information

Preferred Citation

The Edwin B. Worthen Collection, Cary Memorial Library

Acquisition Information

Gift of Edwin B. Worthen, Jr., August 1976

Processed by / date

The materials in the Worthen Collection were arranged, described and cataloged during October 1, 2010-September 30, 2011. Project team members include Linda L. Carroll, Project Director, Alethea Yates, Project Archivist/Documents Specialist, and Sandra Waxman, Photo Archivist, with assistance from Simmons GSLIS students Sarah Wetherbee and Christina Tanguay. Staff from the Lexington Historical Society scanned the lantern slides.

Grant funding

In 2010, Cary Memorial Library received a Library Sciences and Technology Assistance (LSTA) grant from the Institute of Library and Museum Services (IMLS), administered by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners. The Institute of Museum and Library Services is the primary source of federal support for the nation's 123,000 libraries and 17,500 museums. The Institute's mission is to create strong libraries and museums that connect people to information and ideas.

The project also was funded by a gift from the estate of Anita P. Worthen.

Source of Acquisition

The Edwin B. Worthen Collection was donated to Cary Memorial Library in 1976 by Edwin B. Worthen, Jr.
